The LdM-CAMNES Archaeology Field School represents a new approach in studying and understanding ancient cultures within the Mediterranean and Near Eastern areas. Participants in the field schools will gain three kinds of knowledge through a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

First of all, participants will learn about modern archaeological methodologies of research through lectures, on-site digging and data recording processes under the guidance and experience of professional archaeologists. Secondly, participants will learn through a series of lectures and site/museum visits about the cultural aspects (archaeology, art, history, religion etc.) of the ancient societies that produced the architecture and objects that they will be excavating during the stay.

Moreover, participants will achieve a perspective about the contemporary cultural trends of the host country by meeting local students and residents, who will join the excavation project, as well as by visiting different places of historic and cultural relevance and exploring a number of other lifestyle aspects during their stay. The courses are offered in collaboration with the Center for Ancient Mediterranean and Near Eastern Studies (CAMNES).

Field Schools are held in English and have no prerequisites: no archaeology experience/knowledge of Italian language is required. Field Schools require five/six days involvement per week including lessons, archaeological activities and visits.

CONSULT THE ARCHAEOLOGY FIELD SCHOOL BROCHURE FOR FURTHER RELEVANT INFORMATION. It is your responsibility to make sure your home institution will grant you credits for the courses.

Mark the Field School of your choice.
